ABOUT THIS POLICY

This privacy policy explains how we manage your personal information. We may provide more details on how we manage your personal information when we collect your personal information.

WHAT IS PERSONAL INFORMATION?

Personal information includes any information or opinion, about an identified individual or an individual who can be reasonably identified from their information. The information or opinion will still be personal information whether it is true or not and regardless of whether we have kept a record of it.

The information that we seek to collect about you will depend on the products or services that we provide. If you do not allow us to collect all of the information we request, we may not be able to deliver all of those services effectively.

WHAT KINDS OF PERSONAL INFORMATION DO WE COLLECT AND HOLD?

When you engage our services, we may ask for identification information. This information could include your name, address, contact details and date of birth. We may also collect your tax file number if we are authorised to collect it and if you choose to supply it. If you apply for insurance, we may collect information about what is being insured, the beneficiaries, and your health and financial situation, depending on the type of insurance.

Throughout our engagement, we may collect and hold additional personal information about you. This could include transaction information or making a record of queries or complaints you make and, if you make an insurance claim, collecting additional information to assess the claim.

The collection of sensitive information is restricted by the Privacy Act. This includes information about your religion, racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, criminal record, and sexual orientation. It also includes health information and biometric information.

Generally, we only collect this sort of information if it is necessary to provide you with a specific product or service and you have consented to that collection. For example, we may collect health information about you to process a claim under an insurance policy or collect voice biometric information to verify your identity or authorise transactions.

We also collect information from you electronically. For instance, when you visit our website or if you send us electronic correspondence (see "Do we collect personal information electronically?").

Sometimes we collect personal information about you from other people or organisations. This may happen without your direct involvement. For instance, we may collect personal information about you from:

We take reasonable steps to destroy or permanently de-identify any personal information after it can no longer be used.

WHO DO WE DISCLOSE YOUR PERSONAL INFORMATION TO, AND WHY?

We may provide personal information about our clients to organisations outside UNICA Wealth Pty Ltd (UNICA Wealth). To protect personal information, we enter into contracts with our service providers that require them to comply with the Privacy Act. These contracts oblige them to only use the personal information we disclose to them for the specific role we ask them to perform.

Generally, we disclose personal information to organisations that help us with our business. These may include:

CONSUMER DATA RIGHTS ('CDR') AND PRIVACY

Under the CDR regime, banks, energy companies and telecommunications companies, among others, are 'data holders'. These data holders may, on request, share consumer data (such as detailed financial transactions, spending habits) with accredited data recipients (e.g. fintech companies and comparison services). Financial advisers are not 'accredited data recipients' under the regime. However, they are 'trusted advisers'. This means a consumer may consent to an accredited data recipient sharing their CDR data with the adviser.

While financial advisers themselves, as trusted advisers, are not required to obtain consumer consent or provide any particular disclosures under the CDR regime, it is important to recognise that existing obligations under the Privacy Act relating to the collection, use and disclosure of personal information still apply, as well as other regulatory obligations.

As some CDR data can be highly sensitive and could be detrimental to clients if it were to fall into the wrong hands or be used for other purposes, we are required to use particular care around the collection, storage, use and disclosure of such data. We regularly monitor, supervise and review the use of CDR data.

DO WE USE OR DISCLOSE PERSONAL INFORMATION FOR MARKETING?

We may use your personal information to offer you services we believe may be relevant to you.

We do not provide your personal information to marketing companies for the purpose of promoting our services or services of another companies. If we believe that another company can provide relevant services to you, we will discuss this with you and provide an introduction upon your approval.

There is no fee for requesting that your personal information is corrected or for us to make corrections. In processing your request for access to your personal information, a reasonable cost may be charged. This charge covers such things as locating the information and supplying it to you.

There are some circumstances in which we are not required to give you access to your personal information, however we are always happy to discuss this with you at the time.
